Good Attraction.

The always popular Howard-Dorset Co. opened the theatrical season in Paris last night at the Grand Opera House, presenting "The Golden Giant Mine," a Western drama, depicting life in Colorado during the time when so many rushed West in search of gold.

The company is a good one, especially the vaudeville artists, who do nightly new specialties.

Mr. George Howard and Miss Flora Dorset, the principals of the company, are still as clever and popular with the public as ever.

A good crowd attended the performance last night and were well pleased. The bill for to-night will be the great laugh producer, "The Man From Mexico," Saturday matinee, "Two Orphans," the engagement closing to-morrow night with the funny comedy, "A Trip to Bombay."

Paris vs. Ford Sunday.

The Paris Base Ball Club will meet the Ford, Ky., Club at Bacon's Park, Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. The Ford team is one of the best amateur teams in Central Kentucky, having won nine closely contested games out of twelve.

This promises to be the best of the season and all admirers of the game should see it.

The report that the Paris club had disbanded and had been reorganized is without foundation and the regular team, that has been playing good ball all this season, is the one that will meet Ford Sunday. The Paris battery will be Cooper and Dempsey.

Pic-nic.

DEATHS.

James J. Thompson, aged 60 years, died yesterday morning at 6 o'clock, of dropsy. The remains of the deceased will be interred in the Paris cemetery this afternoon, at 4 o'clock. Mr. Thompson has been engaged as an engineer at the Paris Milling Co. for years, having been in the employ of the plant ever since it was started by Wm. Shaw up to the time of his death.

The funeral of Mrs. Rebecca Barnes, wife of Dallas E. Barnes, took place Wednesday at 4 p.m., at the residence of her mother, Mrs. T. D. Wakley. Services were held by Rev. Dr. Rutherford, assisted by Rev. J. A. Francis. Burial at Paris cemetery. The pall-bearers were: Charles Kendall, Clarence Argue, Charles Delaney, Erastus Bowles, G. Thompson, Perry Shy.

Julius Fillman and Miss Ida Bryant, both of Lexington, were married yesterday in the office of County Clerk Ed. D. Paton, Eld. J. S. Sweeney officiating. The happy couple came down on the 8 o'clock interurban car and returned on the 4 o'clock car. The bride is a handsome and beautiful young lady and was handsomely attired in white silk with hat and slippers to match.

Jerry W. Turner, the dairyman, died suddenly about 2 o'clock Wednesday morning. Mr. Turner attended to his regular duties on his farm and delivered his milk Tuesday evening and was seemingly in good health. The deceased was 70 years of age and is survived by his wife and four children. The funeral was held yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, services being conducted by Elders Carey Morgan and J. S. Sweeney. Burial at Paris cemetery.

MATRIMONIAL.

Isaac N. Reid and Miss Ethel Setters, both of this county, were married Wednesday at Lexington, "Squire Farmer" uniting the happy couple at his office in the McClelland Building. On account of the age of the youthful bride, they were first refused a license, and taking the interurban car for Georgetown they met the same fate. "But love always finds a way," so returning to Lexington, some interurban friends volunteered their assistance, with the above result.

The marriage of Miss Edith Terry, of Louisville, and Dr. Julius M. Purnell, of this city, was solemnized yesterday at 12 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Moss Terry. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Reverdy Estill, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, in the presence of the relatives and close friends.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT.

Senator Fairbanks Officially Notified of His Nomination.

Ex-Secretary of War Root Delivered the Notification Address—A Notable Gathering at the Senator's Home in Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 4.—Charles W. Fairbanks, senior United States senator from Indiana, was Wednesday formally notified of his nomination for vice president of the United States by the republican national convention. The notification address was made by Elihu Root, ex-secretary of war, who was temporary chairman of the convention. The exercises were held on the wide veranda of Senator Fairbanks' beautiful home at Sixteenth and Meridian streets, in the presence of members of the notification committee, consisting of one member from each state and territory, the governor and other state officers of Indiana, the republican candidates for state office, the Indiana republican congressional delegation, Indiana delegates and alternates to the national convention, the state central committee and the Republican Editorial association. All these had been especially invited. On the lawn surrounding three sides of the residence and extending far on all sides beneath the great forest trees were several thousand friends, neighbors and political supporters of the senior senator. Massed in a body were 1,000 members of the Marion club, who had acted as escort for the distinguished visitors. Flags were seen everywhere. The house was elaborately decorated, and on one side of the lawn two large tents were topped by waving banners. The day was one of the most beautiful of the year.

The exercises were held on the veranda, the especially invited guests were served with luncheon in large tents on the lawn. The general public was served with light refreshments in the house and a photograph of the candidate and committee was taken from the steps of the veranda. The members of the notification committee began arriving on early morning trains. Shortly after noon the journey of one and one-half miles north, beneath the overlapping trees of Meridian street, began. Gathered at the residence were 5,000 people. Senator Fairbanks and Mrs. Fairbanks received the committee and especially invited guests, and with little delay Mr. Root and Senator Fairbanks led the way to the veranda, where seats were arranged for all. An enthusiastic greeting was accorded the two speakers as they appeared on the veranda. The demonstration lasted for several minutes, during which the members of the committee were seated. Mr. Root without preliminary addressed himself to the formal notification. Senator Fairbanks was given another ovation as he arose to accept the nomination. Both speeches were met with frequent outbursts of applause. As Senator Fairbanks concluded there were cordial greetings, and after a photograph was taken the party was escorted to one of the large tents on the lawn when luncheon was served with light refreshments in the house.

GEN. KELLER KILLED.

Struck by a Bursting Shell Near Liao Yang.

The Main Force of Gen. Kuropatkin, Being Sorely Pressed by the Japanese, is Being Moved to the North.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—A report from an apparently reliable source late Monday night was to the effect that Gen. Kuropatkin's main force had been rapidly moving north for several days.

The report of Lieut. Gen. Count Keller's death is confirmed. He was killed July 29, while resisting the preliminary attack of Gen. Kuroki's army on the Yanze pass, 30 miles east of Liao Yang. The general was standing near a battery which was subjected to a terrific fire when a shell burst close to him and he fell, mortally wounded, dying 20 minutes later. Before he expired Gen. Keller had the satisfaction of knowing that the Japanese attack had been repelled.

Liao Yang, Aug. 3.—After a fierce battle the Eastern Russian force has evacuated Yangtsuling (six miles west of Motien town).

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—It is officially announced that the Russians have fallen back from Yangze pass, but are holding their positions on the Saimants road.

Tokio, Aug. 3.—Gen. Kuroki has administered a severe defeat to the Russian forces which defended the Russian east flank at Liao Yang, winning separate actions at Mushulikzu and Yang Se pass. These two places are 26 miles apart, but the two actions were fought at the same time. The Russians held strong positions. The thermometer registered over 110 degrees Fahrenheit and the soldiers suffered cruelly from heat exhaustion.

Choo Foo, Aug. 3.—A desperate three days' assault on the inner defenses on the northern and eastern sides of Port Arthur has failed, according to a despatch brought by two junks which arrived here Tuesday.

A Chinese who has arrived here on a separate junk confirms the Russians' statement that the Russian killed and wounded during the assault numbered between 5,000 and 6,000. The Japanese in their repeated assaults against the eastern forts on the hills, through barbed wire entanglements and over mines displayed fanatical bravery. They were mowed down by the hail of shells and bullets and the explosion of mines under their feet. Their losses are estimated at 20,000.

Choo Foo, Aug. 4.—The steamer Wuchow, which has just arrived here from New-Chwang, brings further details of the latest Japanese assault on Port Arthur. When nearing Choo Foo the Wuchow picked up a junk carrying seven men, four women and one boy who left Port Arthur Tuesday. They report that the fighting north of the city of Port Arthur occurred at Wolf Hill, and was sanguinary, resulting in the repulse of the Japanese. This hill is situated near the railroad, and eight trains were kept busy bringing the wounded soldiers into the city. The wounded men from the east forts reached Port Arthur in all kinds of vehicles, many, however, coming on foot, dragging shattered limbs. The Russians unite in declaring the fortress will never fall, but they expect that scarcely a building will be left in the city where now there is scarcely a whole pane of glass.

The Chinese arriving here Wednesday night say that the Japanese actually captured two lightly garrisoned forts on the east shore, but abandoned them when their comrades were repulsed from other positions. The Russians, however, insist that this is untrue. The forts at Port Arthur bristle with guns, including many of 8-inch caliber, but the naval artillerymen are alleged to have inflicted the heaviest loss on the Japanese.

The Japanese, while repulsed, have by no means been beaten, and a renewal of the fighting was expected when the junk departed Tuesday from Port Arthur. Among the prisoners captured during the engagement on Wolf's mountain was a Japanese lieutenant carrying a freshly written letter stating that the fighting had been severe and the Japanese losses were heavy. The Japanese are now occupying the outposts trenches which they captured from the Russians.

Preparing For Winter Quarters.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—According to a message received from Harbin, Gen. Kuropatkin has ordered the removal from that place of all useless civilians in order to provide the greatest possible accommodation for the winter quarters.

New Japanese Cruiser Sunk.

Rome, Aug. 4.—The Giornale d'Italia published in an extra edition a dispatch from Tokio, announcing that the Japanese armored cruiser Kasuga, formerly the Argentine warship Rivadavia, has been sunk.

Gunboat Deserted and Blown Up.

New-Chwang, Aug. 4.—Russian gunboat Sievoucht (which has been in the Liao river since the beginning of the war) has been deserted and blown up near Sanche and the crew with vessel's guns started for Liao Yang.

Called On Judge Parker.

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Wall, of Wisconsin, reached Roseton Wednesday, remained to luncheon and spent the afternoon with Judge Parker and his family. Mr. Wall was Wisconsin's favorite son for the presidency.

INTERESTING TREE LORE.

Man Who Knows All About Woodland Growths Gives Some Valuable Information.

"How many leaves do you think a tree has?" asked the man who had read it all up, stopping his friend in the park, relates the New York Sun. "Of course, you don't know. Some birches have 200,000, and each leaf has 100,000 mouths. I know of a 60-year-old beech that had 35,000 leaves, and a 35-year-old one that had only 3,000."

"These 35,000 leaves, dried, weighed only ten pounds and the 3,000 dried, only three-quarters of a pound. But they do tremendous work in a season. During a spring and summer, birches and lindens have been found to exhale 600 or 700 pounds of water per pound of dry leaves; the ash tree about 500; beeches, 400; maples, 400, and oaks, 250. The confers give out about 100 pounds a tree. To stagger you still more, an acre of beech forest, of say, 500 trees, would exhale about 2,000,000 pounds."

"And the funniest part of it all is that is the water in a tree, or the moisture, really amounts to more than half the weight of the tree, or from 55 to 60 per cent, while the wood weighs but 40 to 45 per cent. In a big forest what you don't see weighs more than what you do see. Funny, isn't it?"

"As to forests and water," continued the tree man, "I learned that a partial cutting down of the Volga river valley forests had the tremendous effect of lessening so great an area of water as the Caspian sea. I figured the comparison and found that, pro rata, six feet of water would be taken off Lake Superior, eight off Lake Michigan, 18 off Lake Erie and 27 off Lake Ontario. I was staggered."

"Then I found that deforestation, as we call it, has robbed the Vistula river of 20 inches of water, the magnificent Rhine of 28 inches and the beautiful blue Danube of 55 inches. Let me hit you nearer home. The Hudson has been called a drowned river because the sea encroaches upon it. But you're drowning it more now by your deforestation and you'd better hurry up with those Adirondack lands. The salt water now, they say, goes up to Hastings."

"The Schuylkill is less in volume than ever. So is the Mohawk and so is the Connecticut. Even the fish left the lower part of the Savannah river, but they're trying to do something with that water now."

"Another queer thing is that Christopher Columbus' son Fernando, who crossed the ocean with him, was the first man to start the question of forests causing rainfall, by his observations of the wealth of vegetation on the Island of Jamaica.

Says the Liverpool Post, the busy thoroughfare which we know as Piccadilly is far removed from anything rural as it is possible to imagine, and it can hardly be realized that there was a time when merely one or two houses stood on what is now one of the finest and richest of the world's streets. The name Piccadilly appears to be derived from the rats, piccadills or piccadilles worn by the gallants of the time of James I. and Charles I., the stiffening points of which resembled spear heads or picardills, a minutive of "picca," from the Spanish and Italian. Blount, in his Glossographia (1656), interprets it as the edge or a skirt of a garment and a stiff collar or band for the neck and shoulders, whence the wooden piccadilles (the pillory) in Hudibras. Thus the first house built in the road may have been so named "from its being the utmost or skirt house of the suburbs that way." Others say the name is taken from the fact that one Higgins who built it (the house), got most of his estate from the sale of piccadillas," but the name occurs many years earlier than the mention of the first house, thus Gerard, in his Herbal (1596), states that "the small wild bee-gloss grows upon the drie-ditch banke about Piccadilla."

The road is referred to in Stow's narrative of Sir Thomas Wyatt's rebellion in 1554 as "the highway on the hill over against St. James'" and in Agga's map (1560) it is lettered "The way to Redinge." The upper part of the Haymarket and the fields adjoining to the north and west were the "Pickadilly" of the Restoration. Evelyn quotes the commissioners' orders, July 13, 1662, to pave "the Haymarket about Pugnado," and tradesmen's tokens of that date bear "Pickadilla" and "Pickadilly."

Wealth in England.

In an article on the subject of average incomes in England and France, M. Paul Leroy Beaulieu, in a recent number of L'Economie Francaise, asserts that there are by far a greater number of extremely wealthy people in England than in France. In France there are between 700 and 800 persons whose annual income from property exceeds $50,000 per annum, whereas in England there are no fewer than 2,418 persons in the same enviable position.

"Worth" and "Cost."

A current item says that Queen Margherita of Italy has a lace handkerchief worth $10,000. We would move to amend this statement by substituting for the word "worth" the words "that cost," in the interest of mere facts.—Indianapolis News.

FOR CONGRESS—

HON. SOUTH TRIMBLE,

of Franklin County.

EDITORS Green R. Keller, of the Carlisle Mercury, and N. H. McNew, of the Democrat, are saying some very complimentary things about each other through the editorial columns of their respective papers. We recall that Judge Stitt, while editing the Paris Gazette, very frequently referred to Editor McNew as a novelty in both politics and newspaperdom, but it seems that Judge McNew has been a glowing success in politics, as well as he has been in printing a first-class Democratic weekly newspaper. The News, however, begs to suggest to both editors that they turn their editorial guns on the enemy, and cease to exploit and explain their personal commendations.

A LARGE delegation went from here yesterday to attend the Democratic convention at Lexington to nominate a candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals. Judge James E. Cantrell is the favorite with the Bourbon Democracy, and the delegation from this county are well versed in conventional politics and will leave nothing undone to secure his nomination. Here's hoping the Judge will win.

Plenty of Music.

Paris People Shaken Up.

Wednesday evening at a late hour as the regular Baltimore and Ohio passenger train was speeding down grade approaching the Union Depot, at St. Louis, it crashed into a freight train at 12th street, hurling passengers from their seats, bruising many of them. A large number of people from Paris and Lexington and Bourbon and Fayette counties were aboard, and several suffered bruises about the head and arms—Mrs. J. C. Clay eye bruised, Mrs. M. Payne and daughter, Miss Rosa, of the Bourbon College, received scalp wounds. Several passengers from Ohio and West Virginia, were likewise injured.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.

Mrs. Sallie Redmon White Dies From Pistol Wound Self-Inflicted—Dead Several Hours Before Found.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon Mrs. Sallie Redmon White was found dead in her bed room at her home in East Paris by little Catherine Murphy, who called to see her. Going to the family room she found Mrs. White, as she thought, lying down asleep. Trying repeatedly to awaken her without avail she notified her mother, who, accompanied by Mrs. C. F. Didlake, a near neighbor, repaired to the White homestead and found that Mrs. White was dead.

She was last seen about 8 a. m. in the yard. Shortly after a little colored boy called to sell some plums and hearing a pistol shot was frightened away.

She was found lying on the bed, having placed some newspapers under her before firing the shot, which went through the head, entering at the right temple.

She evidently attempted to shoot herself again as the pistol was clenched in her right hand and the barrel end in her mouth. Coroner Wm. Kenney held an inquest at 5 p. m. and returned a verdict that she came to her death from a pistol wound in the head inflicted by her own hand with suicidal intent.

Mrs. White was aged about 47 years and was a daughter-in-law of the late G. G. White. She is survived by her husband, John White, and one daughter, Mrs. L. D. Thompson.

The Appellate Convention.

Yesterday at Lexington the Appellate Convention was called to order by Chairman A. W. Lee at 1 p. m., who recognized the Cantrill or contesting delegation from Owen county on the call of counties for vote on temporary chairman, amid much noise and excitement. The supporters of Judge Saufley and J. D. Carroll withdrew from the convention and issued a call for convention to be held August 20th.

The regular convention adjourned till 7:30 p. m. last night, when Judge Cantrill was nominated on the 1st ballot.

Mr. Ed. Rice, of North Middletown, was elected Chairman of the Bourbon delegation.

Remember the Date.

The Hibernian Lodge of this city is making great preparations for the grand picnic to be held on August 11. Every one should attend as the receipts are to be used for a good purpose. Admission 25 cents.

Whose Fault Is It?

We have heard numerous complaints about the impure water at the Paris Public Schools. It is said that the pupils were compelled all last season to either drink hydrant water or do without, as the cistern was in such a condition that the water from it was not fit to drink. This matter should be looked into by the proper officials and remedied before the Fall term of school is commenced, and it will no doubt prevent many cases of typhoid fever and other sickness this fall.

We have one of the best city schools in the State, and extensive improvements are now being made in the building—a fine new steam heating apparatus is being put in, and when this is completed there will be nothing wanting except pure water. Let's give the children some good water this year, and save doctor bills and funeral expenses.

We mentioned the matter of inspecting the water to Dr. Silas Evans, Health Officer, and he became very much incensed, and said it was no affair of his, or words to that effect; that a warrant must be issued to correct the trouble. He said newspapers were always going off half-cocked.

If anyone else wants to kick to Dr. Evans about the schools' supply of water, THE NEWS advises them to use the telephone till the doctor gets in a better humor than he was on Wednesday.

THE NEWS is ready at all times to take a little rough talk if we can thereby insure proper precautions being taken to protect the health of the 500 school children. It seems the children must drink contaminated water or suffer the pangs of thirst, but we shall see what we shall see!

DRY Goods and Shoes below cost at Twin Bros. this week. 2t

More About the Court House.

Yesterday afternoon it was discovered that a portion of the north-west wall (from the cornice up) of the court house had sprung, due to the weight of the heavy steel girders forming the roof, a crack of about three-quarters of an inch being made.

The wall is now braced, and 6 additional steel pillars have been ordered from the foundry to reinforce the wall. We do not know whether this is a very serious matter or not—we hope not—but it certainly is unfortunate that the building is beginning to crack at all.

The ten days given Crawford & Gibson to get a bustle on themselves expired yesterday, and no action was taken in the matter, only another meeting of the Fiscal Court called for Saturday.

ATTEND Freeman & Freeman's "Benefit Sale" of Shoes, beginning to-day. 26-1f

A Suggestion.

A number of people who are patrons of the interurban road have asked THE NEWS to suggest to the company that they furnish their passengers with ice water on the cars. The motion of the car makes a great many people sick and if any one should faint they would be unable to get water until they reached either Paris or Lexington. A cooler could be placed in one end of the car with little expense, and would be a great convenience to their passengers—especially the Paris men, as most of them who spend the day in Lexington certainly have to have water, and ice water at that, and have it often.

DON'T fail to attend Harry Simon's Mill-End Sale, from Aug. 8 to 20. 5-2t

Judge Smith's Court.

Mrs. Robt Crouch, of Little Rock, was adjudged insane in Judge Smith's Court, Wednesday, and was taken to the Eastern Kentucky Asylum for the insane by Deputy Sheriff Burke on the 5 o'clock interurban car.

Archibald Carlisle, colored, was tried in Judge Smith's Court, Wednesday, for obtaining money under false pretenses and held to Circuit Court in the sum of $500, in default of which he was sent to jail.

He was bent an' gray an' aged,
An' his eyes were squinched an' dim,
An' you never seen nobody
No baldheadedder than him;
An' folks sorter smiled a-passin'
Where he was an' went their way;
But he never seemed ter notice,
But kept right on 'tih his play.

He could make cat-crades dandy,
An' make willow whistles, too,
An', by gravy, when he'd made 'em
He could whistle on 'em, too!
Till, I don't know how to say it,
But th' tunes just throbbed with joy
An' with devilment, till somehow
Seemed like he was just a boy.

An' he'd go on home with us kids
When we'd played till after dark,
An' no kid could beat him chunkin'
At nothin' can fer a mark;
He was old an' awful wrinkled,
An' his eyes was squinched an' dim,
But the babies held their arms out
An' jest crowed ter go to him.

Men most all called him "Professor,"
But us kids just called him "Slim."
An' he'd watch our shirts an' britches
When us kids went in to swim;
An' his wrinkles come from laughin',
That's what he told us one day,
An' I guess they did, fer somehow
They all seemed to run that way.

When us kids went in to see him,
That there mornin' fore he died,
He was smilin' just like always,
But we cried, an' cried, an' cried;
"N'en he said: "They're boys in Heaven!"—
Gee! I thought my heart 'ud break!
I'll bet they all run to meet him
An' the babies hollered: "Take!"—

In the Service of the Czar

By WALTER LAURENCE HACKETT

(Copyright, 1899, by the Short Story Publishing Company. All Rights Reserved.)

THE room was dingy and but poorly lighted. Around the long table in its center were gathered the conspirators—the men who had sworn to kill the czar. A strange looking appearance they made in the flickering candle light; some with fierce faces marked by the bitter lines of hunger and of hate; some with the enthusiastic and wrapt expression of dreamers; others with the cold impassivity of great generals. One of the last mentioned, colder, more impassive than the rest, sat at the foot of the table, facing the president. His manner showed not the slightest nervousness, not the slightest exhilaration. Yet in an hour he meant to betray the men who sat about him to the horrors of a living death, on the bleak plains of Siberia, gaining thereby the lasting favor of his imperial master. The blow that would ruin his comrades would make him.

The clock struck eight as the president rose to speak.

"Brothers," he began, "brothers, we have all sworn the same sacred vows, we have all stood the severe tests of our order—we can all be trusted. It becomes my duty, therefore, to speak out. Our days of plotting are passed, the time for action has come. At last we shall strike a decisive blow for liberty."

He paused, but no one spoke. There was not a sound in the room. Some breathed a little more quickly—that was all. Pointing to a powder keg in a corner, the president continued:

"Our materials are at hand; our opportunity, also. The czar visits Krasnoe-Selo Thursday—"

The noise of a scuffle in the hall outside the door interrupted him. Several of the men who sat about the table sprang to their feet, the door burst open, and an officer, followed by a squad of soldiers, rushed into the room. In an instant every one of the conspirators was covered by a rifle.

"You are my prisoners," said the officer, curtly.

"By what right?" exclaimed the president. He alone seemed cool; the rest stood as though paralyzed. Ignoring the president, the officer glanced at the others.

"Line up against the wall," he ordered. Silently they obeyed him—powerless to resist. The officer turned to his men and gave a sharp order. The soldiers raised their guns and aimed them at the defenseless breasts of the prisoners.

Again the president spoke:

"What do you mean to do?" cried.

"To execute you at once," returned the officer, coldly. Then to the soldiers:

"Take aim. Fi—"

"Stop!"

The cry rang out loud and clear in the deadly stillness of the room and the spy sprang forward from where he stood against the wall.

"Stop!" he cried.

"Get back," said the officer, sternly; but the spy continued to advance. His coldness, his impassiveness, had disappeared; his face was yellow with fear; his teeth chattered; great drops of sweat stood on his forehead.

"No—no—you must not shoot me," he shrieked; "I am of yourselves—I am an agent of the Third section. It was I who informed against these men—if you kill me it will be murder—murder—murder—" He groveled on the floor at the officer's feet.

The doomed men looked at the miserable wretch with bitter contempt, while in the president's eyes there was something that looked like triumph.

"An agent of the police," said the officer, doubtfully. "You have your credentials?"

"Yes—yes," screamed the wretch, tearing a piece of paper from his pocket and handing it to the officer, "it is there—it is there. Ah, my God!"

This last exclamation was one of renewed terror, for the soldiers, dropping their rifles, had sprung upon him, and were binding him hand and foot.

The president stepped forward, with a smile.

"Brothers," said he, to the amazed men, who still stood against the wall, "brothers, in a great cause, like ours, we cannot be too careful. This little scene was devised to discover what traitors we had amongst us. It has suc-sceeded. You, who have proved faithful, are quite safe."

The men looked at him as though they could scarcely credit their senses; then one or two began to sob, and one man laughed.

"And this spy?" he questioned.

A fierce murmur ran around the room; the men, with one accord, started toward the corner, where the man lay bound.

"Kill him—kill him!" they shouted. The president raised his hand.

"Stop," cried he, "the man is mine, mine to punish as I see fit. Leave him to me. You will accompany our brother Vassolooff," indicating the pseudo officer, "to a place of refuge. From our friend's admission, we are no longer safe here."

"But—
"I have spoken," said the president, sternly.

The conspirators turned and silently went out. As the man who had laughed passed the spy he kicked him in the face and laughed again.

Then the president was alone with the spy. He stood looking at him for a moment, a cruel smile on his white-bearded face. Presently he took from his pocket a long fuse, placed one end in the powder keg, and wound the other about one of the tallow candles, an inch from the burning wick. Then he placed the candle in front of the spy's face, where he could almost touch it, and, turning, went to the door. At the threshold he paused.

"Your fate will be a lesson to your fellow spies," he said—and was gone. The spy heard his steps as he went down the passage; he counted them till they died away in the awful silence of the night. Then he looked at the candle. How long would it take an inch of tallow to burn? The police would not come till nine. Would it last till then? He looked at the clock. Twenty minutes past eight. Would that inch of tallow last 40 minutes? If it should not, would be blown up so painful?

He looked at the candle again: it seemed to melt away before his eager gaze. He tried to shriek, but could not. The bruise on his face, where the man had kicked him, hurt fearfully . . . he became unconscious.

He dreamed of his mother, dead years before. . . . He thought that he was a child again and that she had taken him on her lap, and was telling him the old stories that he loved. It was summer, and he could hear the reapers singing. . . . He laughed with happiness.

He opened his eyes. The darkness of the room frightened him, and he tried to call his mother. The gag was still in his mouth, and like a flash the whole dreadful, sickening truth came back to him. The hands of the clock pointed to 20 minutes before nine, and the candle was more than half burned. He shuddered like a leaf; a dreadful nausea sickened him.

Again he looked at the clock. Ten minutes of nine. The candle seemed to burn slower. Was there still hope? Would the police come on time?—would they come on time? He strained his ears to hear their coming, but there was no sound. Good God, would they be late?

It was five minutes of nine. He tried to pray. He was lost. No! At last he could hear the soldiers approaching; but the clock was striking nine. A knock on the door, and the flame had touched the fuse. He watched the spark as it crept, like a snake, across the floor, nearer, nearer, nearer to the keg. He tried to scream. . . . The sound of a door being broken open. . . . The footsteps of men on the passage, outside the door, but the spark had reached the keg. . . . A flash—

A second later, when the soldiers entered, they saw a sight that frightened even them, used to fearful sights as they were. A dead man, bound and gagged, lay upon the floor. His face was green with terror, his hair snow white, and his eyes red, staring and protruding. On the floor was the black mark where a fuse had burned, and in one corner was a powder keg—empty!

WOMEN IN NEW PROFESSION

In Boston certain Authors Employ Educated Assistants in Obtaining Literary and Historical Data.

Among the new ways educated women have discovered to earn a comfortable living in Boston is one that might be called the profession of "author's assistant." Who would have thought a score or more years ago that a writer of novels could develop into such a captain of industry that he could relegate to the shoulders of a corps of helpers the drudgery of delving for his materials? Yet such is the fact in the case of many of to-day's well-known fiction writers. They pay, and pay well, for having historical incidents and mysteries dug out of ancient library records. Then, having collected and sifted their facts, they get down to work and turn out a book. It is true that many of the successful authors have moved to New York, but the resources of the Boston public library are so great that the author's assistants work here by correspondence.

The work of the "author's assistant" is no haphazard undertaking. The author who employs her gives explicit directions. He intends to write a novel, say, about Louis XI. of France or Henry VIII. of England, or George Washington. In a general way he has worked out his plan, dealing with some particular incident. But in order to perfect the plot, make the characters true and portray the real life of the time he needs an endless lot of detailed information. He must know all there is to be known about his incident or period.

Most of the "author's assistants" learn typewriting; some of them think it well, though not obligatory, to master shorthand.

GOT SQUARE WITH BANK.

How a United States Naval Official Put It All Over an English Banker.

The late Paymaster Clark, of Delaware, of the United States navy, was attached to one of the ships on the European station during the period of the civil war, relates the New York Times. She was an armed vessel and had been long at sea, and went in for coal, provisions and to give the men a liberty day on shore. To meet these and other expenses Paymaster Clark drew sight drafts on the sub-treasury of New York through the government agents, J. S. Morgan & Co., bankers, at Old Broad street, London.

Accompanied by the vice consul, he went to the Plymouth branch of the Bank of England, and, presenting his drafts, asked to have them changed for notes and gold. The bank manager, not content with exercising proper commercial scrutiny, was extremely disapproving, and finally said:

"Well, I do not know the sub-treasury, I do not know the paper, nor you, and I have never had business with the gentleman who is United States vice consul here, so I won't cash your drafts. You say J. S. Morgan will endorse them. You had better go up to London and let him cash them."

Mr. Clark went to the telegraph office and put himself in communication with the manager of the house of Morgan, who went to the Bank of England in London. The bank sent word to the Plymouth branch manager, and that gentleman came personally to the Royal hotel, and, with hat in hand, begged to be of service to Paymaster Clark in any way that gentleman would suggest.

The apparently placated paymaster, accompanied by his clerk, went with the bank officer to the bank. The drafts were duly passed over, and a large bundle of Bank of England notes placed before the paymaster.

"What are these?" asked Clark.

"Those are Bank of England notes." "Yes, I see they are notes, signed by Frederick May, that the bank will pay bearer, etc. Well, I do not know Mr. May, and of course I do not know you. This paper may be good, but I have no assurance of that. I'll trouble you for the gold."

The humiliated bank manager had to turn it up, and Paymaster Clark had it carried down to the boat in triumph.

"I would have preferred part of the money in notes," he said, "but I could not refuse the chance of getting even with him."

Sea Level.
Sea level is a level only in the imagination. For instance, the water in the bay of Bengal is 300 feet higher than the surface of the Indian ocean, and along the Pacific coast of South America the sea is often 200 feet higher than its lowest surface. The differences result from the attractive powers of great mountain ranges.

Every year more than 500,000 Japanese youths qualify by age for regular military service, and 200,000 begin to serve either with the colors or as supernumeraries.

In a Canoe.
On a wager of $5,000 two men left Vancouver, B. C., on May 21, 1901, on a tour around the world in an Alaskan Indian canoe. They crossed over to Australia, and, when last seen, some weeks ago, were getting provisions at Durban, Natal.

THE CIPHER WAS TOO MUCH

Teleg. Operator Thought the Message Was Too Much Twisted to Save.

While Secretary Hay was in the country one summer, an important piece of official business was pending, and he arranged with Washington that any news that might arrive about the matter should be telegraphed to him in cipher.

Day after day, he waited, says the New York Tribune, but no telegram came. One morning, happening to go to the lonely little telegraph office, he said to the operator:

"I suppose you have received no dispatch for me?"

"Why, yes, sir," the operator replied, "there was a dispatch for you the other day, but it was all twisted and confused. I couldn't make head or tail of it, so I didn't think it was any use to send it up to you."

Arriving at a Verdict.

Kushequa, Pa., Aug. 1.—(Special)—In this section of Pennsylvania there is a growing belief that for such Kidney Diseases as Rheumatism and Lame Back there is only one sure cure, and that is Dodd's Kidney Pills. This belief grows from such cases as that of Mrs. M. L. Davidson, of this place. She tells the story herself as follows:

"I have suffered from Rheumatism for thirty years and find that Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken. I was also bothered with Lame Back, and I can only say that my back hasn't bothered me since I took Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Considering that Mrs. Davidson only took two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, the result would be considered wonderful if it were not that others are reporting similar results daily. Kushequa is fast arriving at a verdict that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the one sure cure for Rheumatism."

CHIEF OF POLICE SAVED.

Newberry, S. C.—W. H. Harris, chief of police of Newberry, says: "I suffered for a number of years with kidney complaint. There was a dull aching across the small of my back that was worse at night and made me feel miserable all the time. The kidney secretions were dark and full of sediment, and lack of control compelled me to rise a number of times during the night. Between this annoyance and the backache it was impossible for me to get much sleep and my health was being undermined. I tried a number of remedies, but nothing helped me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills. The use of this remedy according to directions promptly brought about a change for the better. After using two boxes the backache all left me, the kidney secretions cleared up and the action of the kidneys became normal."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Chief Harris will be mailed to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers. Price 50 cents per box.

Mustard Paste.

For a mustard paste take one-half flour and one-half mustard and blend thoroughly before adding water. Apply between linen or flannel cloths. When the paste begins to redden the skin, remove and rub the affected part with sweet oil. Then replace the plaster. If this method is followed the mustard may be left on without injury to the patient for a considerable length of time. This is a physician's prescription.—N. Y. Post.

Invasion of China.

Here is a Woo-Sung milk "ad" from the Shanghai Times: "We open at Woo-Sung in the south of the telegraph company for sale the foreign milk, the taste are sweet, the milk are pure and the price are just. We haven't put any water in it, if examine out, won't pay a single cent. If you want to buy so you will know the foreign cows shop. Gen Sung Kee." Wouldn't that curdle you!—N. Y. Tribune.

Fine Climate.

For a winter climate Colorado Springs has a reputation second to no locality in the United States. During the winter of 1903-04 hundreds of robins, bluebirds, Spanish sparrows, orioles and turtle doves made their homes in that vicinity, and there was no weather during the whole season so severe as to harm them. There were 317 clear days in the year.

"Mrs. Cheilius looks bad, doesn't she?" "Yes, and no wonder. She's been awake every night for a week past." "The idea! What was the matter?" "She discovered about a week ago that her husband talks in his sleep, and, of course, she had to listen."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

BUNCH TOGETHER.

Coffee Has a Curious Way of Finally Attacking Some Organ.

All that come from coffee are cumulative, that is, unless the coffee is taken away new troubles are continually appearing and the old ones get worse.

"To begin with," says a Kansan, "I was a slave to coffee just as thousands of others to-day; thought I could not live without drinking strong coffee every morning for breakfast and I had sick headaches that kept me in bed several days every month. Could hardly keep my food on my stomach, but would vomit as long as I could throw anything up and when I could get hot coffee to stay on my stomach I thought I was better."

"Well, two years ago this spring I was that sick with rheumatism I could not use my right arm to do anything, had heart trouble, was nervous. My nerves were all unstrung and my finger nails and tips were blue as if I had a chill all the time, and my face and hands yellow as a pumpkin. My doctor said it was heart disease and rheumatism and my neighbors said I had Bright's Disease and was going to die."

"Well, I did not know what on earth was the matter and every morning would drag myself out of bed and go to breakfast, not to eat anything, but to force down some more coffee. Then in a little while I would be so nervous, my heart would beat like everything."

"Finally one morning I told my husband I believed coffee was the cause of this trouble and that I thought I would try Postum, which I had seen advertised. He said 'All right,' so we pot Postum, and although I did not like it at first I got right down to business and made it according to directions, then it was fine and the whole family got to using it, and I tell you it has worked wonders for me. Thanks to Postum in place of the poison, coffee, I now enjoy good health, have not been in bed with sick headache for two years, although I had it for 30 years before I began Postum and my nerves are now strong and I have no trouble from my heart or from the rheumatism."

"I consider Postum a necessary article of food on my table. My friends who come here and taste my Postum say it is delicious." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

MODES OF LATE SUMMER.

HSEEMS to me that the season is prolonged every year, and now there are many people who do not think of leaving town before August. The summer is certainly later than it used to be, and it is not unusual for our light, thin frocks to be in request as late as September.

Some of the darker flannels in stripes and spots are very attractive and suitable for neat costumes for the woman who is afraid of looking stout in the blouse-like garment. Dark blue and white, black and white, and red and white are charming on the water.

The rage this year is for bright-colored linens. We have had such prettily embroidered linen blouses that many of us find it advisable to invest in a plain linen skirt or two to go with them, because here, as elsewhere, if we want to look our smartest, the skirt and blouse should be of the same color. Red is essentially a water shade and nothing looks better against the background of gray and green.

There is a linen in new dark shade of red which is very effective made up as a skirt and bolero, worn with a white muslin sun hat and blouse, and a white washing-leather belt and gloves. Some women look their best in the duck's-egg shade, which is extremely effective and pretty, whereas French women seem to prefer white linne of a coarse description, almost resembling a holland, trimmed with coarse embroidery to correspond; this is one of the most effective models for the seaside.

Then there is a coarse silky linen which is most attractive when mixed with Irish crochet or torchon lace. The finer makes of linen are produced in a variety of beautiful shadings, and are usually made up very simply with a stitched or strapped skirt and blouse. For the river and country one must not forget the charms of brown holland—real, old-fashioned brown holland, which is so effective when embroidered in red or white.

Nowadays, on the decorated house-boats, and on the pretty country so essentially Saxon, was in the ascendant; now we have changed all that, and have become more cosmopolitan in our taste.

There are few entertainments given where the orthodox blue serge is altogether absent. To-day this can be the very smartest of garments, for our tailors are copying the Viennese style with the excellence of American workmanship. Some of the best serges of the moment are heavily braided with flat silk braids and ornamented with tiny gold or silver wrought buttons. Of course, nothing looks more charming than the white sateen frock.

Smart and suitable tailor-made wraps are a great consideration. Linen is an excellent substitute for the Tussore dust wrap. It looks very smart in pretty shades, and, without being too heavy, has a certain amount of weight. Some of the smartest wraps of the season are in sateen, cloth and linen. The latter in pale blue, decorated with straps, lined with thin silk and showing a collar and revers of handsome embroidery, is very effective.

I have seen a most delightful white linen wrap, the front and collar of which are trimmed with a curious linen embroidery of a coarse make, taking in several shades of dull red and black. This is lined with a white corded silk, and is further decorated with some beautiful oxidized buttons.

There is a new make of coarse yak lace, which forms a delightful applique trimming, and is quite in keeping with this kind of smart tailor-built garment.

Lovely specimens of the kimono are made of thick white satin, trimmed with gold and silver galon; satin cut in this rather severe style falls into delightful folds by its own weight, and a soft effect is obtained by linings of chintz and lace.

A girl friend asked me questions regarding trousseau lingerie the other day, and I will tell you something of what I told her. The girl who is to be married of course wants everything of the very nicest, and to secure this desired effect she should have her lingerie made of nainsook. Nothing else is so good, nor will anything else wash or wear so well. In the same connection I ran across a sketch of what I consider to be a charming nainsook chemise suitable for evening wear. It is made with little turn-out points of lace insertion and embroidery, edged with frills of lace. Straps of soft silk ribbon pass over the shoulders, and are fastened back and front with ribbon rosettes.
